Intercept 0-1 (Community Services, Crisis and Law Enforcement)

4. Continue to expand the crisis care continuum and expand strategies to reduce law enforcement's need to respond to crisis events and provide adequate clinical support when law enforcement does respond.

5. Develop/enhance officer wellness strategies.

Mental Wellness

It is not enough for you to just get home safe—you also must return home well. In this profession, stress and trauma are an inherent part of the job. Not actively managing the effects of stress can negatively affect your ability to protect yourself and others and create a poor quality of life off-duty. This Spotlight on Safety helps you identify when the negative effects of stress and trauma are affecting you and others at your agency and gives you tools to deal with them. Use these materials to keep health and wellness at the forefront daily!

6. Increase access to bilingual clinicians/system navigators

7. Address crisis and placement resources for youth.

Intercept 2-3 (Courts and Jails)

8. Develop more formal and coordinated diversion strategies for arraignment diversion (Intercept 2) and pretrial diversion (Intercept 3).

Intercept 4-5 (Reentry and Community Supervision)

Intercept 4-5 (Reentry and Community Supervision)

9. Continue to enhance transition partnerships between the jails and community.

Cross Intercept

10. Develop a more formal approach at the local and state level to expanding housing options for justice-involved persons.

12. Expand use of technology across the intercepts.

13. Expand the utilization of peer support across intercepts.

- Improves quality of life
- Improves engagement and satisfaction with services and supports
- Improves whole health, including chronic conditions like diabetes
- Decreases hospitalizations and inpatient days
- Reduces the overall cost of services

Peer support empowers people to make the best decisions for them and to strive towards their goals in their communities.
